DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

The amendment filed 07/17/06 is objected to under 35 U.S.C. 132(a) because it introduces new matter into the disclosure. 35 U.S.C. 132(a) states that no amendment shall introduce new matter into the disclosure of the invention. The added material which is not supported by the original disclosure is as follows: the specification supports the legs being hinged. Pivotal movement does not necessarily encompass a hinge. Applicant is required to cancel the new matter in the reply to this Office Action.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Claims 1-3,5,8,9,11 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US Patent #6,763,912 to ROBINSON et al. in view of US Patent #4,747,243 to ANSTEAD. ROBINSON et al. discloses the use of a portable deck system (110,120) including a platform assembly (5,80), see figures 4 and 9, having top surface (104) positionable adjacent an entry door (not shown). The platform (5,80) including a support frame formed of a plurality of lateral extents (90) and a plurality of longitudinal extents (88,92); a plurality of leg members (22) mounted to the lateral extents (90); a plurality of decking members (86) removably coupled via threaded bolts, column 4, line 34-37 to the support frame; wherein the support frame includes a first portion (FP) removably coupled to a second portion (SP) via fasteners, column 5, lines 55-59. ROBINSON et al. discloses the basic claimed system except for the legs and lateral extends being pivotally coupled. ANSTEAD teaches that it is known in the art at the time the invention was made to pivotally attach legs (21',22') and lateral/longitudinal extents (59,60) and (46,47) and (44,45). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the system of ROBINSON et al. with the pivot legs of ANSTEAD in order to create an ease for transporting the assembly. Regarding claim 2, the system further includes an access means (5,122) operationally coupled to the platform providing vertical transition from ground level. Regarding claim 3, ROBINSON et al., as modified by ANSTEAD, discloses legs movable between a stored position parallel to the lateral extent (90) and a support position perpendicular to the lateral extent (90). In reference to claim 5, the first portion (FP) is separable from the second portion (SP) via fasteners. Regarding claim 7, the access means (5,122) is a stair assembly. In reference to claim 8, the stair assembly

Art Unit: 3635

(5,122) includes a frame having a plurality of incremental vertical supports (12) and a plurality of treads (16). Regarding claim 9, the stair frame (5,122) is selectively coupled to the platform, column 3, lines 8-14. In reference to claim 11, the assembly includes a railing (60) having at least one hand rail (68) and at least two vertical stanchions (62,64) coupled to the platform, column 3, lines 39-51.

Claim 4 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US Patent #6,763,912 to ROBINSON et al. in view of US Patent #4,74,243 to ANSTEAD as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of us patent #6,810,995 to WARFORD. ROBINSON et al., as modified by ANSTEAD, discloses the basic claimed system except for the meg members telescoping. WARFORD teaches that it is known in the art to provide a system with telescoping legs (30). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the assembly with telescoping legs in order to facilitate an ease of transport and installation.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claim 6 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

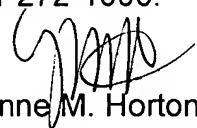

Claims 13-18,20 and 21 are allowed.
